

SOULMATES

Copyright Mia Sperber 2012

They all say love is hard to find
The search, a hopeless game.
A useless effort of the mind
Our longing to inflame.

But I know that you exist.
I feel your burning eyes.
My voice keeps calling up a name
Your silence to disguise.

Where are you? Please come back to me
To hold hands like before.
Thousands of years have seen us both.
We're for a thousand more.

Cross the abyss which breaks our path
And build a bridge of love.
Our lonely mantles to discard
A true gift from above.

They all say love is hard to find
The search, a hopeless game.
But I found you, my mirror twin.
Forever we're the same.